

BLOGS AND ANECDOTES OF VPZS2021 MOUNTAINEERING GUIDES

At The starting point of the exam for Mountaineering guides at the Poljčane cemetery. Before starting, the guide candidate asks the instructor:

“Will we pass the exam when we bring a client (on that day clients role were playing instructors)to the top of mountains, or when at the end we leave them at the cemetery “britof?” 😊

Well, that is why the instructors decided to end the exam tours at the top of Mountain (in Boč hut), as they are apparently afraid that someone would really “end up” on the cemetery due to an unsuccessful exam tour 😊

(Adapted from the true story of a VPZS candidate who asked this with a serious voice and a buckwheat accent. 😊)

Why do you have to put canned food in a PVC bag and backpack in the mountains? In addition to ecological reasons, it is also because mice don't scare you all night long when you're bivouacing by trying to drag an open can into theirs holes. In our case, the young guides chased away their fear of unfamiliar sounds by shouting: "Bemti miša.= Fu..... mice" In the middle of the night, they also debated whether it is allowed to kill a mouse which were disturbing the night's peace... Just to clarify, even a hunter in the Triglav National Park is not allowed to kill a hedgehog, so we also adapted to the sounds and rules that apply in the "living room" of forest animals when bivouacing.

Why do snails on night bivouacs only lick the (un)beautiful mountaineers while they sleep? There are two answers to this. For some, they help them look better (snails liquids are used in face cosmetics), for others, so that they don't look too beautiful. Well, some partners kissed their beloved mountaineer next morning despite being licked by a snail before:)

VPZS2021 we are not keen “performers” of BDSM practices, but we know that a whip is the answer to everything 😊 At least to many exam questions for a PZS guide. We PZS guides from the 2021 generation were also connected by knots, especially whip knot, both in a physical sense and in beautiful memories. So that there is no mistake and that your thoughts do not wander... 😊 we will soon add some of our internal forum or anecdotes...

It is clever to GO IN THE MOUNTAINS in a group of people

Do not visit the mountains alone, but always, especially if you are less experienced, in the company of guides of AAS/PZS organisation or at least more experienced mountaineers.

WHY TO TRUST THE MOUNTAINEERING GUIDES of the Mountaineering Association of Slovenia, which we can recommend, you can find out here:
